SUCCESS CRITERION 2.2.1 · LEVEL A

Timing Adjustable

Users are given adequate time to read and use content, or can turn off, adjust, or extend timing.

Principle 2: Operable

Guideline 2.2: Enough Time

What each role can do

Product manager

Plan for timing features that are flexible and adjustable to the user’s needs.

Designer

Design with options to pause, stop, or extend time limits wherever possible.

Developer

Implement mechanisms to allow the user to control timing features.

Tester

Test the timing features under various scenarios to ensure they meet accessibility standards.

Once it is fixed

> “Thanks for taking the pressure off. Now I can actually think before I click!”
